Guidelines for police weapons apply to citizens, too: chief

Guidelines for police officers and their weapons apply to citizens, as well, according to Hoopeston's top law enforcement officer.

Those guidelines include treating all guns as if they are loaded, never letting the muzzle cover anything you are not willing to destroy, keeping your finger off the trigger until the sights are on target and being sure of your target, said Chief Carl Valentine at Monday's Neighborhood Watch meeting.

Along with gun safety and displaying guns used by the department, Valentine talked about officers' decisions to use force or not.

"It's a very touchy thing," he said, "because (if you should someone) you know you're going to be suspended with pay pending an investigation. Even though they're the bad guys, you hate to take a human life."

Valentine spoke of the dangers of being an officer, saying officers are often out-gunned by the criminals. "A lot of the bad guys have bullet-proof vests," he said. "And they make armor-piercing bullets now. It's dangerous."

Often, the same companies that make products to aid police departments also make things for citizens to circumvent them. "There are people who make radar detectors who make the radar guns," he said.

While most residents think of Hoopeston as a place where few major crimes happen, Valentine said officers - and residents - must be prepared.

"A lot of these bad guys, they'll pick on a small town just because they think the police aren't expecting them," he said.

Other discussion included a suspect in recent local burglaries and juvenile crime, which may be reduced through stepped-up curfew arrests.

"Anytime anybody's out running around after
